Expression of interest due for Supercomputing Challenge's Summer Teacher Institute

Each summer the Supercomputing Challenge project offers a weeklong institute for middle- and high-school teachers planning to participate in the next student challenge. Participants receive a stipend plus room and board; become part of an established, professional learning community; and receive mentoring throughout the challenge year for themselves and their teams. As in recent years, the 2014 Summer Teacher Institute takes place at New Mexico Tech in Socorro. To express interest, email consult@challenge.nm.org. For further information, consult the Supercomputing Challenge's Summer Teacher Institute webpage. Also see the "La Cueva High School wins top prize in Supercomputing Challenge" entry in this issue's In Other News section.
